

Delivering e-business solutions

DOES your company make the most of its internet presence? Do you shy away from e-marketing because you are worried about what it involves? Visit Art Division on Stand A50 at Business First 2003 and find out how the latest technology can really make the difference for your business.

Leave a business card in the box provided and your company could even benefit by winning one of Art Division's website products,

They have the solution: The Art Division team in their exclusive free draw.*

Based in Carshalton, Art Division was founded two years ago and provides a range of exciting and adaptable web design and e-marketing solutions, as well as graphic design, for clients ranging from estate agents and solicitors to auctioneers and car dealers. The company principals work hard to understand the needs of every client and provide a tailored package of solutions.

Following an initial discussion of a client's specific needs, Art Division provides a complete e-marketing and web solution implementation service, from design and production to hosting and maintenance of the recommended system, and full post-implementation support, as necessary.

Art Division's latest products – "Wright About Now" and "Trader Pack" – allow individual businesses to build and maintain an active, up-to-date e-mailing list and to trade worldwide via an onsite catalogue and sales facility. Both products are flexible, adaptable and can be altered to fulfil new sales or contact targets at a moment's notice, with no specialised programming training.

Eighty per cent of Art Division's clients are retained – a testament to the company's dedication and commitment to providing exactly the right service, at the right price – and one which delivers against agreed business objectives.

Talk to Art Division on 0870 710 7691 or visit stand A50 at the show, to discuss how your e-business solutions could really start to deliver ££s for your bottom line!
